Honorifics Explained

Throughout the Del Rey Manga books, you will find Japanese honorifics left intact in the translations. For those not familiar with how the Japanese use honorifics and, more important, how they differ from American honorifics, we present this brief overview.

Politeness has always been a critical facet of Japanese culture. Ever since the feudal era, when Japan was a highly stratified society, use of honorifics—which can be defined as polite speech that indicates relationship or status—has played an essential role in the Japanese language. When addressing someone in Japanese, an honorific usually takes the form of a suffix attached to one's name (example: "Asuna-san"), is used as a title at the end of one's name, or appears in place of the name itself (example: "Negi-sensei," or simply "Sensei!").

Honorifics can be expressions of respect or endearment. In the context of manga and anime, honorifics give insight into the nature of the relationship between characters. Many English translations leave out these important honorifics and therefore distort the feel of the original Japanese. Because Japanese honorifics contain nuances that English honorifics lack, it is our policy at Del Rey not to translate them. Here, instead, is a guide to some of the honorifics you may encounter in Del Rey Manga.

-san: This is the most common honorific and is equivalent to Mr., Miss, Ms., or Mrs. It is the all-purpose honorific and can be used in any situation where politeness is required.

-sama: This is one level higher than "-san" and is used to confer great respect.

-dono: This comes from the word "tono," which means "lord." It is an even higher level than "-sama" and confers utmost respect.

-kun: This suffix is used at the end of boys' names to express familiarity or endearment. It is also sometimes used by men among friends, or when addressing someone younger or of a lower station.

-chan: This is used to express endearment, mostly toward girls. It is also used for little boys, pets, and even among lovers. It gives a sense of childish cuteness.

Bozu: This is an informal way to refer to a boy, similar to the English terms "kid" and "squirt."

Sempai/
Senpai: This title suggests that the addressee is one's senior in a group or organization. It is most often used in a school setting, where underclassmen refer to their upperclassmen as "sempai." It can also be used in the workplace, such as when a newer employee addresses an employee who has seniority in the company.

Kohai: This is the opposite of "sempai" and is used toward underclassmen in school or newcomers in the workplace. It connotes that the addressee is of a lower station.

Sensei: Literally meaning "one who has come before," this title is used for teachers, doctors, or masters of any profession or art.

[blank]: This is usually forgotten in these lists, but it is perhaps the most significant difference between Japanese and English. The lack of honorific means that the speaker has permission to address the person in a very intimate way. Usually, only family, spouses, or very close friends have this kind of permission. Known as yobisute, it can be gratifying when someone who has earned the intimacy starts to call one by one's name without an honorific. But when that intimacy hasn't been earned, it can be very insulting.

Onee-sama!
I am glad you're safe!

Hmph.
Reiri called you.
Right, Sherwood?
Idiot! What are you doing, Francisca?
Aaagh!

What's...
What's that!?
He involved the human world too much.
Yeah, a little too far.

A royal...
Huh!?
WOOOOSH
It's my first time seeing one, too.
You don't know?
It's a phoenix.
That's not what I meant!

How is it, Hiro?
Isn't it beautiful?
That is what royals look like when we become adults.
When royals become adults,
we become immortal phoenixes.
You never heard of the legend that you become immortal when you drink the blood of the bird of fire?
.....!

I see, so the royal court is going to take care of this issue?
I understand. I will obey your orders.
They're probably going to team up with the human world to cover up this incident.
So everything is fixed!
Snap out of it!
If you think about it, you should be able to figure it out.
Why we siblings are killing each other before we become adults...
What's wrong, Hiro?

The answer is simple.
You see...
...when we become adults, we cannot be killed.
That is why before that happens, we only leave one prince or princess!
Or else the kingdom will be thrown into turmoil!
I don't know if it's the last king or my ancestors, but they came down just for this?
If you want to judge me, try me!

Hime...
Hime is...
...a phoenix!
Story 22/END

Hey!
Stand back, werewolf girl.
We're just here to accomplish our duty.
It's not up to us to decide who's wrong.
You guys got it wrong.
It wasn't Hime who released the zombies.
It was one of her siblings!

Let's go.
Hime!
Thank you for being cooperative.
Please forgive our disrespect.
Hmph.
I already have an idea who charged me.
I didn't think he would make the first move so quick.

It's been awhile, Lilianne!

We will now start the trial!
THUD
THUD
Quiet!
...released zombies against Fifth Prince Severin...
Hey, Riza.
The defendant, Second Princess Lilianne...
Why am I here?
...
I will read the indictment.
A blood warrior and its master swim together and sink together.
You share the same fate.
Because you are a blood warrior.
Huh?
Ew! Can you not touch me with your dirty hands?
Don't come near me!

...it's too dangerous for the defendant to release them!
What is important here is that if you think about the nature of zombies...
...it is clear that the defendant attacked Prince Severin!
So as the fly man testifies...
SWISH
SWISH
It is reasonable to think that the defendant who planned the attack...
...was the one who released the zombies!
Done!
Please, please wait a minute.
Everything you just presented is less than circumstantial evidence.
Without physical evidence, I cannot accept such wild accusations!

And the defendant, Princess Lilianne...
...lost all of her subjects when someone released zombies in her territory a year ago.
Subjects known as the best in the kingdom. It is actually she who is the victim.
According to my materials...
...it says that the zombies secretly obtained by the defendant got out of control!
It was all a show she put on herself.
Please, please, wait.
Just as you can't prove a devil, you can't prove that someone "didn't do something."
I request that the plaintiff present physical evidence!
GRR

My reasoning is complete!
Please wait...

I don't mind continuing the trial until we both have all of the evidence.
But we are royal...a phoenix breed.
Your honor!
Who will be able to judge us then?
The phoenix is immortal and sacred.
That ass, how dare he!
If we argue for years, we may become adults.

And plus, the hard disk of the Mac crashed and the illustration data of Princess Resurrection and us disappeared completely!
Rotte-chan, who are you talking to?
Shut up!
I see that.
This town is hopeless.
What are you doing here? You should escape.
It's full of zombies.

Your only choice is to barricade yourself inside somewhere.
If you want to survive.
Now we're stuck in!

No!
Why do you have a rifle?
Is Japan a gun society?
I like to hunt as a hobby.
I have a license for this too.

I should get your name.
I'm Chikao Jojima. The others call me by my initials, C.J.
Stop!!
Your remarks are dangerous on too many levels.
Go away.
What are you going to do?
Huh?
I'll walk through the mountains and get out of here.
Hey.
Stop making things up.

Translation Notes

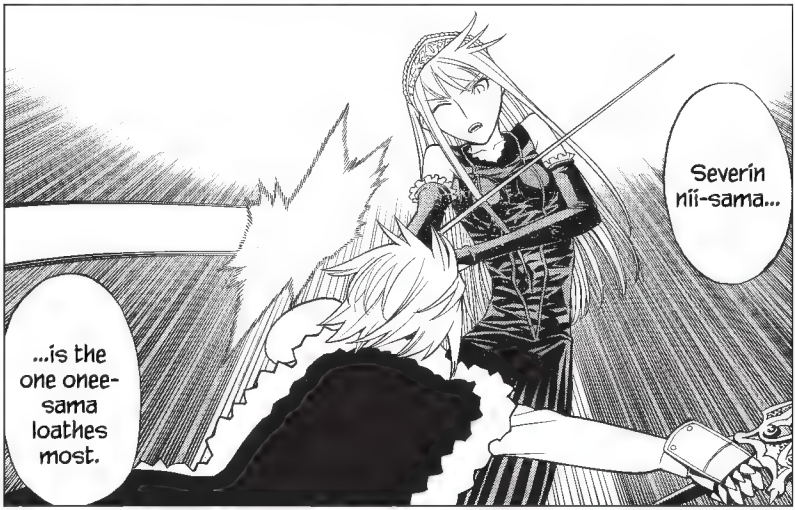
Japanese is a tricky language for most Westerners, and translation is often more an art than a science. For your edification and reading pleasure, here are notes on some of the places where we could have gone in a different direction, or where a Japanese cultural reference is used.

Onee-sama, page 80

Onee-sama is an honorific way to say "older sister."

Nii-sama, page 159

Nii-sama is an honorific way to say "older brother." You can add "o" to the end to indicate more respect, but it is not needed.



Preview of volume 6

We're pleased to present you with a preview of volume 6. Please check our website (www.delreymanga.com) to see when this volume will be available in English. For now you'll have to make do with the Japanese!
